Dazzling – as you admire The Greenwich from the street, that’s the word that springs to mind. The design is stunning, of course. Contemporary and distinctive. But under the bright blue sky with the sun illuminating the superbly finished frontage, the eye-catching pale colour scheme literally dazzles you too.

Yes, with its light steel roof, abundant windows and stylish white rendered walls complementing the traditional brickwork, there’s no mistaking The Greenwich from the outside. But is it as remarkable inside? You step through the shady porch and inviting double entry doors to find out.

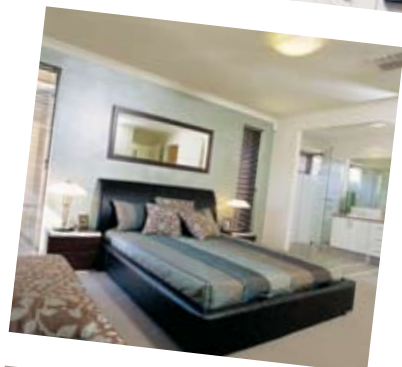

You’re not disappointed. Passing the conveniently located home office off the hall, you enter the master suite. It’s huge. And not simply the bedroom. The walk-in robe seems to go on forever. The open ensuite boasts a large double washbasin and vanity beneath an impressive mirror. There’s even a double shower. This is five-star living at its best.

Next, you head for the main living areas, but you’re stopped in your tracks. Not by the double garage with its secure access direct into the hall. And not by the laundry that’s cleverly tucked away behind the garage. No, it’s the home theatre that makes your jaw drop. It boasts the same generous proportions as the master suite. You can just imagine the whole family in here stretching out in front of a big flat-screen TV to watch the latest blockbuster.

At the end of the hall, this unique family home seems to open up before you. Again, you’re dazzled by the quality of light – there are windows everywhere. But then you take in the space in all its open-plan glory: the large kitchen with a breakfast bar and stunning island benchtop; the spacious family and dining areas overlooking the enticing alfresco; and the vast games room, big enough for that pool table you always wanted.

It’s easy to picture your family here, enjoying all this space together. But then, as you discover when you explore the children’s wing, everyone has their own space and privacy too. All three bedrooms boast built-in robes and comfortably accommodate double beds. Then there’s the stylish but practical family bathroom with separate toilet. And there’s even an activity room here so the kids have got somewhere of their own to study and hang out with friends.

There’s no doubt, The Greenwich is dazzling, both inside and out.
